

Bladder diary

7 days · what you drink and what you pass · volumes in ml

Name _____ From _____ To _____

Keep it by the toilet, fill it in as you go, bring all the pages to the appointment.

How to fill it in

1. Write the time right away, not at the end of the day.
2. Drinks: the amount on the cup, can or bottle. A guess is better than a gap.
3. Urine: measure with a jug or a collection “hat” under the toilet seat. Not measured? Put a ✓ — the trip still counts.
4. Night: write when you went to bed and got up. Tick Night for anything in between.
5. Days: most doctors ask for three complete days, some for seven. They need not be in a row.

Reading the columns

✓ in Passed: a trip to the toilet without a measurement

✓ in Night: between going to bed and getting up

Note: a strong urge, a leak and how much, a pad change

Total: optional, your doctor can add it up

How much is in a...

cup 200–250 ml · glass 250 ml · can 330 ml · small bottle 500 ml

Based on the NHS frequency–volume chart (Gloucestershire Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust), the Urology Care Foundation bladder diary, ICS bladder-diary terminology and NICE guidance (a minimum of three days). Columns match the Bladder Diary: Fluid Balance app, so a paper diary and the app read the same way.
